WELCOME

Outlander fans are a passionate bunch, so we knew we had to go directly to the source to find out what was in store for the drama's supersized penultimate instalment after that dramatic season six cliffhanger!

Sitting down with Australian actor David Berry, whose role as British soldier Lord John Grey ramps up this season, we asked him all the burning questions.

You can read what he has to say about this must-see latest chapter from page 8.

Also this month, we catch up with Shirley Henderson – perhaps best known to many as Moaning Myrtle in the Harry Potter films – to talk about her gripping new series The House Across the Street, which marks her first lead television role.

If you can't get enough of British thrillers, you'll also be hooked on twisty four-part family drama The Catch, which star Poppy Gilbert (Sherwood) previews for us.

And sport lovers won't be able to go past our candid interviews with Manly Sea Eagles captain Daly Cherry-Evans and netball superstar Liz Watson.

Enjoy the issue.

RHONY gets a reboot

A total cast shake-up sees six stunning newbies take over the Big Apple

THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF NEW YORK CITY (s14)

Starts July 17, Mondays EXPRESS at 1.30pm, Encore at 8.30pm and watch On Demand

FOX ARENA [111]

► Expect a full-cast shake-up when The Real Housewives of New York City returns to screens this month, with six fashionable, influential and philanthropic women who have all made their mark on Manhattan set to open up their lives.

Sai De Silva, Ubah Hassan, Erin Dana Lichy, Jenna Lyons, Jessel Taank and Brynn Whitfield are the brave newcomers stepping into the well-worn shoes of their predecessors, hoping to bring style and class back to the Big Apple.

“Entering into uncharted territory, while challenging, has been fulfilling in ways I never would have expected,” says married mum-of-three and real estate mogul Lichy, who owns her own renovation and design firm, Homegirl. “Having the ability to portray my version of NYC has been truly very rewarding.”

As for single mum Lyons, the former president and executive creative director of J.Crew, who is now the co-founder and CEO of beauty brand LoveSeen, the chance to bring diversification to the Housewives franchise was a huge drawcard.

“When I left J.Crew, I was like, ‘What am I gonna do?’ So I went on a podcast and they asked me if I had heard that there was going to be a reboot of RHONY, they said, and I didn’t know what ‘RHONY’ was!” she admits with a laugh. “They said, ‘There’s never been an openly gay woman on The Housewives.’ And so I decided that I was going to do it.”

Despite being nervous about how she’ll be received on the show – “I am literally terrified!” she says – Lyons reveals she sought the advice of executive producer Andy Cohen, who assured her she had made the right decision: “I DM’d Andy and I was like, ‘This is hysterical,’ and he’s like, ‘No, it’s actually a good idea.’”

For his part, Cohen believes that while the rebooted series has early RHONY vibes, it also stands apart – in a good way, that he hopes audiences will eagerly embrace.

“The things that they are arguing about are as ridiculous as early RHONY,” he notes. “I think it’s going to be a different show. It’s so hard because everyone is going to compare it to [the original] RHONY, which was so perfect. And I hope this is perfect in a totally different way.”

A world of wonder

Joanna Lumley takes audiences on a journey of discovery as she revisits some of her favourite cities

JOANNA LUMLEY'S GREAT CITIES OF THE WORLD

Starts July 11, Tuesdays at 8.30pm and watch On Demand

UKTV [105]

► “Cities are constantly evolving and I want to experience the real essence of them,” actress, presenter and British national treasure Dame Joanna Lumley says of what led to her latest adventure. “I love their history and tradition but, for me, it’s the buzz and energy of the people which make a place.”

Visiting three of her favourite metropolitan destinations – Paris, Rome and Berlin – Lumley meets locals in a bid to discover what really makes these cities so unique and special in three-part docuseries Joanna Lumley’s Great Cities of the World.

“For people who’ve never been, it will be an exciting introduction to these cities, and for people who have, it will be a lovely opening of a secret cupboard door,” she explains. “We’ll be looking into different and unseen parts.”

The travelogue begins in Paris, with a highlight being a visit to the famed Notre-Dame cathedral. Sadly, the medieval church, which dates from 1163 and features magnificent French Gothic architecture, sustained major fire damage in 2019 and remains closed to the public.

In Rome, Lumley takes in sights including the Colosseum, domed former Roman temple the Pantheon and the Trevi Fountain – one of the world’s most famous water features and the largest Baroque example in the city.

Then it’s on to Germany’s capital, where the former Absolutely Fabulous (watch On Demand) star meets centenarian Holocaust survivor Margot Friedländer, who returned home from school aged 12 to discover she’d been left to fend for herself after her mother and brother were taken by the Nazis.

“She was so brave and, of course, like a lot of survivors, they felt it was their duty to pass on first-hand what really happened,” Lumley recalls. “People say, ‘We’ll never forget,’ but the world does. Two generations and it’s forgotten, and back it grows up again.”

Of all the cities, Lumley was especially keen to return to Berlin, having not been back since its reunification.

“It’s a city stained for eternity by the horrors of the Holocaust and the shame of losing two World Wars,” she notes. “So I was astonished by the gaiety and the kindness, the open-heartedness of the Berliners.”

3 fascinating facts about MEGA METRO

1 IT’S AN ODE TO A MASSIVE PROJECT

Shot over five years, this four-part docuseries takes viewers inside the construction of the Sydney Metro, the biggest public transport project in Australian history. Currently comprising 13 stations, the first line will eventually cover 31 stations and 66km of track. “No-one has ever embarked on the scale of what we’re doing here,” says former head of Transport for NSW Rodd Staples.

2 TUNNEL VISION

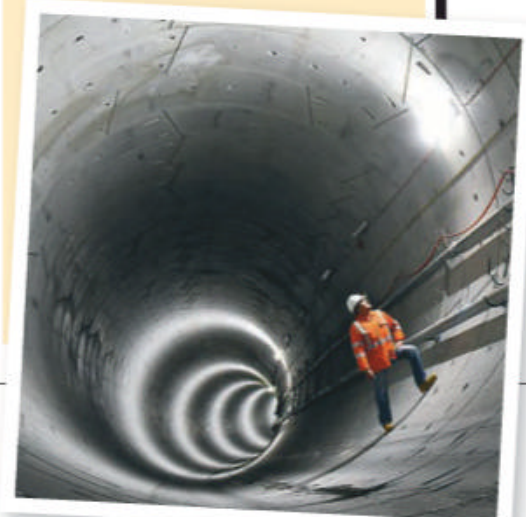

The network boasts the longest rail tunnels ever built on our shores, including under Sydney Harbour and the CBD, a truly epic feat of engineering requiring nine gargantuan tunnel-boring machines and posing myriad challenges.

3 THE TRAINS ARE SCI-FI

If you thought a Tesla was high-tech, think again! From starting to stopping and opening doors, the trains are fully automated, so while the network will generate as many as 40,000 jobs – including at the space-age Mission Control – there are no onboard staff. f

WAR and PEACE

As Lord John Grey makes his return with Jamie Fraser's secret son, Aussie David Berry teases the tension that's brewing between Outlander's strapping soldiers

OUTLANDER (S7A)

EXPRESS Saturdays at 7.30pm
and watch On Demand

FOX ONE [101]

A startling and unexpected confession from Tom Christie (Mark Lewis Jones) saw her escape the gallows after being wrongfully accused of murdering Malva Christie (Jessica Reynolds), but there's still plenty of peril ahead for Claire Fraser (Caitriona Balfe) and her loved ones in the opening half of Outlander's penultimate season, which recently got off to quite the exhilarating start.

"Outlander likes to tease us a lot with life-and-death stakes – we always get the stakes really high, that's what keeps the audience really hooked," notes David Berry, the Aussie actor who portrays Lord John Grey. "What's great about this show is that we see how strong this relationship between Jamie and Claire is and we love seeing it tested and then come back together."

Perhaps another way time-travelling English nurse Claire and her Scottish soldier husband Jamie's (Sam Heughan) love will be tested in this latest outing is through the arrival of Jamie's now-grown secret son, William Ransom (played by Charles Vandervaat).

With William's true parentage still unbeknownst to him, when that secret is finally exposed, it's sure to have far-reaching consequences for all.

"William doesn't know yet that Jamie's his father, that he's a Fraser, and this is something that is going to be held over the heads of people who really care about keeping it a secret," Berry tells FOXTEL magazine. "Throughout the season, we'll see whether or not that secret is able to be kept as people are looking to expose that secret. We can only imagine how that's going to affect William, who hasn't ever known anything other than Lord John Grey as his adopted father and certainly doesn't know anything about Jamie Fraser being his biological father."

Indeed, arriving in Wilmington, North Carolina with Lord John – the man who has raised him – British soldier William is oblivious to his familial connection to Jamie when the two are reacquainted.

"I'm excited that audiences get to see that relationship play out in a more complicated way, because William's not a child anymore and he has thoughts and opinions and values of his own," Berry shares. "What is interesting about William, of course, is that he has the instincts and blood of a Fraser, but the pedigree of Lord John Grey in his upbringing and also the parenting of Lord John Grey."

"William has come to the Americas because he wants to participate [in the American Revolutionary War], which I guess is no surprise because he has the fighting spirit of the Frasers. We'll see how that comes into conflict with Jamie and what Jamie's reaction to that will be because, as we know, William is part of the Crown – he's been raised by an English Lord – but, at the same time, the other complicating factor is Jamie's his father and Lord John is Jamie's best friend. While their values are at conflict – their political values – their hearts are still very much in alignment and this is a conflict that plays out in that relationship."

As for playing Dad to the young man, Berry, whose own son turns seven next month, admits it was "weird" to realise he's reached a point in his career where he's playing these more senior roles. >>

Jamie Fraser (Sam Heughan) is set to fight on the side of the revolutionaries

"It's one of the first times in my career I started to actually have a realisation about how old I am," the actor concedes with a laugh. "I could see in Charles a younger me. Not that I'm saying Charles is anything like me, but I remember being a 20-year-old on set and now, being close to 40, it was weird to play a parent. But it's also something that I've been really interested and curious about playing, because I am a parent in my real life, obviously, to a son who's much younger than Charles, but there are certain feelings that you carry as a father and to bring those skills and those feelings to the screen with another actor was really fun.

"Charles and I had a great rapport," he adds. "He's Canadian and I was also born in Canada, so we have that link. He's just a really delightful young actor who brought a renewed sense of energy to the set and, particularly after seven seasons, we're really worn into our habits and our rhythms, and then you have new blood come in and it just really revitalises and re-energises things on set. Charles is just a breath of fresh air and energy, and it was really great working with him. He has a wonderful sense of humour and I think he's a terrific actor."

While fans of the books by American author Diana Gabaldon, upon which the television series is loosely based, were disappointed to only see Lord John Grey in one episode last season – a combination of COVID-19 wreaking havoc on filming schedules and Berry of course having to travel from Australia

"This is my favourite season that I've been involved in" to Scotland to shoot, along with Balfe being pregnant at the time – Berry assures us that the storylines he was supposed to be a part of will still take place, albeit in an order different to the novels.

"We have amended certain story arcs, and things that were going to happen in season six will now be moved into season seven," Berry confirms. "It was great that we got a chance to move that story forward, so those story arcs aren't missing. They're just in this season, which will be a supersized season.

"For my money, this is my favourite season that I've been involved with," he continues. "My character is involved with some really interesting and dangerous material, and I was personally very satisfied with the way the character was able to explore those things and the drama that he was involved in was really fun to play.”

Of course, when we last saw Lord John and his unrequited love Jamie together in season six, their friendship seemed to be broken beyond repair after Jamie revealed his defection from the Crown to join the rebel Sons of Liberty.

“We will pick up right where we left off with that relationship,” Berry affirms. “Things are very uncertain in the friendship between Jamie and John. There’s an underlying tension of betrayal that Jamie has chosen his allegiance to the rebellion and, from Lord John’s point of view, that he’s putting his life and his family’s life at risk by, I guess, being a little bit of an ideologue about his affiliation with the rebels. Lord John thinks that peace is the safest route, but I guess in Lord John’s eyes, peace also means allegiance to the Crown and ignoring a lot of the problems that come with that and the exploitation that a lot of people were feeling under the Crown at that time of British rule.

“So we will see in the opening episodes definitely an ultimate meeting where these characters have to kind of find closure with this conflict. And we do find some kind of closure between Lord John and Jamie, for the first part of the season,” he continues, “but of course this is not the end of their interaction with each other and I think Jamie and John are going to be put in more conflict. Their relationship is going to be tested more than anything this season than it ever has before. Lord John has a love for Jamie, but Lord John’s love for Jamie is being tested in ways that it never has before. This season will ultimately change the nature of their relationship, fundamentally.”

No doubt Berry is hinting at the rumoured upcoming storyline that avid readers of the novels have been eagerly anticipating, which – should it stay true to the source material – will see his character take on a much more prominent role in the remaining seasons.

“I can say that the writers have kept as close to the source material as possible for this season which, as I say, is an adaptation, a relative of the books, not a direct analogue or copy,” Berry is quick to note. “But certainly a lot of the things that the book readers are familiar with and are excited to see, we have put into this season. It’s when those things will occur, I wouldn’t want to tell you; it’s better to find it out as we go along and as the pace of the story unfolds. But if you’ve read the books, you already have a sense of what’s coming up ahead and I think you have a lot to look forward to and that those really juicy story threads are going to be played out on screen.”

WISHFUL THINKING

With Colin Robinson back to full potency and Guillermo in a literal do-or-die situation, the vampire world in Staten Island gets a shake-up when What We Do in the Shadows returns

WHAT WE DO IN THE SHADOWS (s5)

Starts EXPRESS July 14, Fridays at 7.30pm and watch On Demand

FOX SHOWCASE [112]

For the fourth season of What We Do in the Shadows, bon-vivant bloodsucker Laszlo (Matt Berry) turned decidedly domestic, raising baby Colin Robinson (Mark Proksch) through a very intense growth spurt. Meanwhile, Laszlo's wife, Nadja (Natasia Demetriou), used the Broadway-loving child as the featured cabaret act for her namesake vampire nightclub, a passion project she indulged in with new bestie The Guide (Kristen Schaal).

Back at their Staten Island home, roommate Nandor the Relentless (Kayvan Novak) was tiring of his marriage to Marwa (Parisa Fakhri). On the flip side, his ex-familiar, Guillermo (Harvey Guillén), came out to his family about his sexuality and found first love with auction-house boyfriend Freddie (Al Roberts). But Nandor, also besotted with Freddie, used his last djinn wish to turn Marwa into a clone of Freddie, upsetting Guillermo.

By the time the season ended, Nadja had torched her club in an ill-conceived attempt at insurance fraud and Colin had emerged in his original, energy-vampire form, causing Laszlo to go into a funk. Frustrated with waiting to be made a vampire by Nandor, Guillermo asked his friend, Derek (Chris Sandiford), to do the honours. Will our favourite undead gang start the fifth season of What We Do in the Shadows teetering on the brink of a new order – or return to the same-old, same-old?

"As with every cliffhanger we've done, we've paid it off," executive producer and writer Paul Simms promises, especially regarding the relationship between Nandor and Guillermo. "You don't come back [in season five] and have Guillermo go, 'Oh, I changed my mind,' or 'Oh, it was all just a dream.' A lot of the next season is exploring Guillermo making a very big decision."

In many ways, the series has been building to that choice since the very first episode aired in March 2019.

"It was about Guillermo wanting to be a vampire," Simms explains. "But... if there's any consistent theme of this show, it's probably, 'Be careful what you wish for.' I mean, it was something that played out literally with Nandor [in the fourth] season, but it's an overarching theme of the show. So the Guillermo stuff is gonna be really funny."

Regardless of his bond (or lack thereof) with former master Nandor, should Guillermo turn, he would become a huge target for his Van Helsing relatives, who have sworn to forever hunt and destroy vampires.

"In season five, we have a really good episode where we'll see Guillermo with his family again," Simms adds. "[We're] always expanding and opening that world."

For Proksch, who played Colin throughout his rapid growth from infant to teen, learning more about his character and preparing him for his comeback was a rewarding experience.

"It was all very unique from my usual Colin Robinson," he recalls. "I had a lot of fun going on tour as teenage Colin, where I'm singing and dancing as a gawky teenager. And then, you know, Colin discovering his closet with all his past in it. I think they did a really good job."

"It was kind of a play on those superhero moments where they find the cape and their uniform. And then there's the question of whether Colin

"I had a lot of fun... on tour as teenage Colin" remembers anything that Laszlo did for him. I think that was done well. It's always good to leave some question marks."

There is no doubt, however, about the commitment between Laszlo and Nadia. Even through their lovers' quarrels, infidelities and differences of opinion about one particular cursed witch's hat, the pair speaks highly of each other in mixed company.

"You know, me and Matt in real life are really close and we have a very, like, jokey relationship," Demetriou says of her connection to Berry.

And while she admits that, as British comedians, they could easily default to playing sentimental scenes without the requisite sweetness, they do their best not to: "I think that works when you've got everything else [in the show] being really stupid – a few little moments of real sincerity." f

TOO CLOSE TO HOME

Shirley Henderson opens up about playing a woman whose obsession with a missing child spirals out of control in British thriller The House Across the Street

THE HOUSE ACROSS THE STREET

Starts July 5, Wednesdays at 8.30pm
and watch On Demand

BBC First [119]

A lonely single mother, a missing child and a community in crisis set the scene for new psychological drama The House Across the Street.

Claudia – portrayed by Harry Potter (watch On Demand) star Shirley Henderson (pictured main) – is a school nurse whose world has closed in on her. She’s recovering from breast cancer while teenage son Rhys (Caleb Wilson) has moved out to live with her ex-husband, Leon (Luke Griffin), and his new young family, leaving Claudia feeling increasingly isolated.

So when her seven-year-old neighbour, Emily, disappears from the local playground, she throws herself into the search effort. But what starts out as a genuine desire to help evolves into something darker, with no-one safe from suspicion.

Henderson was immediately intrigued by the script for the taut four-part series.

“I was given two episodes initially,” the Scottish actress tells FOXTEL magazine. “And those eventually changed as well.

“Like with lots of things, it’s developing as you’re filming. But there was something very compelling as a reader. The writing was beautiful. I loved what I read of the two episodes and the complexity of it, and just wanted to see what it was all about. I liked the promise of what might come with the character.”

The disappearance of a young girl affects an entire community in The House Across the Street

As Claudia’s fixation with the case spirals, she inveigles herself into the life of the grieving family – including handsome dad Owen (Ian Lloyd Anderson), aloof mum Sabine (Lisa Dwyer Hogg) and distraught brother Dean (Calum Jess).

“I think within her heart, it came from a good place,” muses Henderson, who feels Claudia’s obsession stems from her loneliness. “There’s too much thinking time. Too much quietness. Not much fun, not much interesting conversation – nothing to get her away from herself.”

In her desperation to solve Emily’s disappearance, there’s perhaps a sense that Claudia has found her purpose.

“I felt she was kind of locked in herself,” Henderson reflects.

“Then one day, the wind catches her and she’s sort of hooked by these people and this incident.”

With this new focus, Claudia sees a way that she can make a difference.

“I think she wants to feel needed and loved. And she wants to be held and she wants to be a mum,” Henderson adds. “She just found within this household something that makes her feel wanted. But there is something sinister running underneath that, that she maybe didn’t see at first as well.”

With the mystery deepening, she strikes up a relationship with teacher George, played by Craig Parkinson, who starred as DI Matthew ‘Dot’ Cottan in police drama Line of Duty.

Henderson says he was “electric – absolutely magic” to work alongside, adding: “It was really such a spark working with him. He has a dangerous quality, but is very sweet and gentle.”

Given that her stellar career has encompassed film roles including Moaning Myrtle in the Harry Potter franchise, Gail in Trainspotting (watch On Demand) and Jude in Bridget Jones’s Diary, this was, surprisingly, Henderson’s first lead TV role.

“I was very surprised to be offered it,” she says with a laugh. “And, you know, pleasantly surprised at that. I would normally be some strange character hovering in the corner!” f

COLLEGE KILLER UNMASKED

The senseless slaying of four US students frames a gripping doco

► The chilling killing spree that turned a student party house into a bloodbath and horrified a US university town is examined in one-hour documentary The Idaho College Murders. Here, we break down everything you need to know about the shocking case that is still evolving.

Between 4.04am and 4.20am on November 13, 2022, four University of Idaho students were stabbed to death by a masked intruder at an off-campus house. No weapon was found, there was no sign of forced entry, but witnesses, DNA, CCTV and mobile phone data led police to Bryan Kohberger, 28, a PhD criminology student from another university, who is awaiting trial on four counts of first-degree murder.

Investigators describe the crime scene as “the most gruesome and bloody they’ve ever encountered”, while hardened forensic experts and journalists are visibly moved by the shattering impact of four young lives dashed in the most grisly way, while the possible motive remains elusive.

DEEP WATERS

Grief, loss and the secrets that bind us are explored in a compelling new dark domestic drama

THE CATCH

Starts July 28, Fridays at 8.30pm
and watch On Demand

BBC First [119]

Emotionally charged, with shocking twists until the very final scene, The Catch charts the journey of a family coming to terms with a traumatic loss, as daughter Abbie (Poppy Gilbert) – on the verge of adulthood and new horizons – introduces her enigmatic boyfriend Ryan (Aneurin Barnard).

Dad Ed (Jason Watkins, Around the World in 80 Days, The Crown), a Navy veteran and trawlerman who is still haunted by the drowning of son Josh (Jacob Hickey) years earlier, questions whether Ryan is right for Abbie, while wife Claire (Cathy Belton) and mother-in-law Phyllis (Brenda Fricker) think the handsome former Army Major is a catch. Is Ed being over-protective or is there more to Ryan than meets the eye?

Coinciding with mysterious Ryan arriving on the scene, dark secrets from Ed's past surface, threatening to see him lose everything. The more obsessed he becomes with digging into Ryan and trying to find out who's behind exposing him, the more he loses his grip on everything he holds dear.

Based on the 2020 novel of the same name by TM Logan (The Holiday), this four-part drama series was filmed on the outskirts of Dublin, but is set in the south-west of England.

Here, Gilbert (pictured main with Barnard) sits down with FOXTEL magazine to discuss playing a woman who's trying to keep everyone happy – including herself.

What drew you to the project and your character?

A lot, to be honest! So often, when you get breakdowns [of series], you get lots of description – especially for women – about how the character might look and how they might sound and their demeanour. With Abbie, I got her backstory, I got the feeling she gives people when you meet her, I got dreams and hopes. These are writers who want to work with an actor to create the character instead of: ‘Here’s an idea of what we’ve got. Can you fit this mould?’

Abbie gives up her dreams of travelling to settle down with Ryan. What motivates her?

This is a complicated one, because lots of people I’ve spoken to ask, ‘Do you think she is easily led?’ But I don’t think she is. I think she loves with her full chest. I think she’s always trying to make sure everybody else is looked after. This woman is complex and she’s young. But I also think she’s delaying her trip to Australia; she’s not saying it’s all off the table. She’s saying, ‘Right now, at this moment in my life, I’m following my heart. And this is what I want to do.’ Also she knows that her mum and dad are not healed and she is terrified of leaving them.

Watkins has a very personal connection to the role of Ed, having suffered his own terrible loss when his daughter, Maude, died of sepsis aged two. Did that make filming particularly emotional?

He really was so generous with opening himself up to explaining that experience to us and helped us get to some of the places we come to. He explained how that grief weighs on a family, without ever giving me notes or being overbearing. He never imposed on anybody else’s experience. It just was exemplary.

It’s intense viewing – why do you think audiences will be hooked?

I think we are believable as a family – we look like each other! Even my own family has commented that it seemed like a very close-knit domestic household. So I’m hoping that not only does the domestic situation seem realistic, but that their situation... Yes, it’s dire, but as you meet them it’s pretty middle-of-the-road, with three generations in one household. It could be your neighbour, it could be your cousins. It could be people you grew up with. They are relatable.

It must have been incredible to work with Oscar-winner Brenda Fricker (My Left Foot). What did you learn from her?

I feel like when you are in the beginning of any job, every big project you do is an enormous learning curve. Brenda was so exceptional to be in a scene with. If you are looking at her in real life, her eyes pierce into your soul. That’s not an exaggeration! She can literally see your childhood. She is so present. You can’t be fake, you can’t be acting with a capital ‘A’. You have to be there, having that conversation with your ‘grandmother’. It was a real career highlight.

BUDDING BAKERS

Junior Bake Off host Harry Hill is flanked by judges Liam Charles and Ravneet Gill

JUNIOR BAKE OFF (s8)

Starts Monday July 3, weeknights at 7.30pm and watch On Demand

LifeStyle Food [125]

Crazy challenges, a whole lot of sugar and flour, and cute kids who can cook better than most adults... That's right, it's Junior Bake Off time! For the fourth season in a row, funnyman Harry Hill is back as host, joined again by the judges, pastry chef Ravneet Gill and The Great British Bake Off alumnus Liam Charles.

Here's what's in store for season eight as 16 of Britain's best baby bakers battle it out.

MEET THE BAKERS

In Heat One, nine-year-old Alfie is a two-for-one deal. Competing with twin brother Charlie, he's been baking since he was three and has signature recipes like lemon drizzle cake down pat.

While Alfie is a recipe-driven baker, Charlie thinks of himself as a "cool baker who loves to experiment". Both East Sussex boys have their mum to thank for teaching them all they know.

Another keen experimenter is Belfast's Annabel A, 11, who's obsessed with her Mary Berry cookbooks and dreams of opening her own cafe.

Cheshire girl Dolly, 10, caught the baking bug from her mum and nanna, while West Yorkshire lad Zeke, 12, honed his skills at school and home.

A self-taught baker, nine-year-old Immy from Bath is a keen skateboarder and names Jamie Oliver as her culinary inspiration.

With both English and Indian roots, Oliver, 11, from South Yorkshire likes to infuse his bakes with his mixed heritage to create a style he calls "rustic".

Lancashire's Sofia is set on becoming an actress, but could easily get sidetracked by her baking. The 10-year-old is in her element when she's decorating.

HEAT 2

Amelia, 12, from Staffordshire spends 20 hours a week doing gymnastics and especially loves baking bread – a passion she shares with 12-year-old Londoner Thomas, who also makes a mean cinnamon swirl.

Nine-year-old Annabel B from Essex is another keen gymnast who bakes at least twice a week and has a thing for anything sweet.

Yorkshire boy Harrison, 10, loves to put his own spin on a recipe and was taught to bake by his dad, as was Mya from London, whose father ran a Ghanaian bakery.

Reading, writing, drawing – 11-year-old Poppy from Tyne and Wear has a few hobbies, but baking is emerging as a favourite pastime and choux pastry is her forte!

Essex-based Tristan, 10, comes from a family of bakers and is encouraged by his nan to work his Caribbean heritage into his cooking. Meanwhile, budding scientist Jamie from Warwickshire just loves to experiment with new flavours.

THE CHALLENGES

Each time they set foot in the iconic Bake Off Tent, contestants will have their skills and creativity put to the test in a series of challenges. For instance, the Showstopper round on Bread Day requires them to bake their best friends in bread form, while other standout tasks include the 'If I were Prime Minister' cake and 'My dream school trip' decorated blondie.

THE PRIZE

These young bakers aren't motivated by money. Instead of a cash prize, the winner takes home the glass cake stand trophy and the honour of being cream of the cooking crop! f

POTTERING AROUND

The Great Pottery Throw Down is back!

► Calling all potters! The Great Pottery Throw Down returns for season six, with 12 amateur clay wizards gathering at the Gladstone Pottery Museum in Stoke-on-Trent to vie for the crown. Among the aspiring ceramicists hoping to wow the judges with their wheel work? A medical student, a nanny, a retired head teacher and a jewellery designer.

The competition is stiff from the very first challenge, as the contestants go head-to-head making everything from handle-less milk jugs to hanging planters and rice bowls.

Back on her feet after spending last season on crutches following a bad leg break, host Siobhán McSweeney is "genuinely excited" to return to the show, alongside

"I had to miss a few episodes and felt like I'd let everyone down," she says. "So it's absolute bliss to be back. I'm not that good an actor to fake how much fun we have."

Far from your typical high-drama reality show, McSweeney insists the broad appeal of this wholesome craft contest lies in its niceness: "I think viewers are sick of high stakes, shouting and silliness. We want to see nice people make nice things."

Don't Worry Darling's Olivia Wilde and Harry Styles talk about recreating the '50s, the notion of men controlling women and those internet rumours

Foxtel Movies Premiere [401]

When Don't Worry Darling director Olivia Wilde premiered her movie at last year's Venice International Film Festival, audiences were intrigued – not just with the film's bold and mysterious Stepford Wives-style drama about men trying to control women, but also with the rumours of Wilde's romantic relationship with her leading man, pop idol Harry Styles.

"The internet feeds itself. I don't feel the need to contribute. I think it's sufficiently well nourished," Wilde said during a press conference at the festival, shutting down all personal questions.

But the pair, who ended their two-year relationship in November 2022, still had plenty to say about Wilde's second feature as director (she also has a supporting role in the film), following her critically acclaimed 2019 comedy Booksmart.

NO WORRIES

Florence Pugh stars in the psychological thriller as Alice, a 1950s housewife living with her husband, Jack (Styles), in an isolated California desert oasis called Victory. While the men work on a top-secret project they cannot discuss, the women stay home to cook, clean and enjoy a seemingly perfect suburban paradise – until cracks begin to appear and Alice is forced to question why she's really there.

PALM SPRINGS VICTORY

Wilde – whose acting credits include TV series House and Vinyl (watch both On Demand),

Harry Styles enjoyed stepping back in time for his role as Jack and films The Change-Up (watch On Demand) and TRON: Legacy – says her fascination with the past heavily informed the look of the film: "I've always been really interested in the iconography of the 1950s and '60s in America. We were so inspired by the architecture, art, film and music of that era, and it's such a seductive era. [It was] the perfect way to design the world of Victory."

One major coup for the filmmaker was being given permission to film in and around the Kaufmann House, a Palm Springs architectural icon that became a symbol of the modernist movement thanks to Slim Aarons' 1970 photo Poolside Gossip. Wilde reveals a framed poster of the image hung on her wall while the film was in its development stage.

"It was always our inspiration, but we never dreamed in a million years that we'd be able to film there," admits Wilde. "No film has ever shot there, so it was very surreal to suddenly find ourselves inside the environment that actually inspired the world."

ROE vs WILDE

Even though filming was over by the time the Roe vs Wade precedent protecting a woman's right to abortion in the US was overturned, it did reinforce the timeliness of the story.

"I don't think there will ever be a time when the idea of controlling someone's body is not something relevant to be able to fight against," says Wilde. "We thought a lot about the generations of women that came before ours and now, unfortunately, the generation of women that we are part of, too, in terms of body autonomy."

"The paradox of the town of Victory is that everything that is beautiful is also sinister and that's by design. The movie is suggesting that if we try to control people, it doesn't necessarily lead us to the Utopian end we want. In fact, trying to control humanity never ends well."

VINTAGE STYLES

Former One Direction member Styles (Dunkirk, My Policeman) may have considerably more experience as a recording artist than as a movie star, but he believes both outlets feed each other.

"Making music is a really personal thing and I think, with acting, for the most part you're pretending to play someone else and exploring different things," Styles explains. "But I think they can aid each other in a way because anytime you get to view the world through a different lens for a moment, it can help with creativity."

He adds that the authenticity of the period sets and props, from the homes to the cars and wardrobe, allowed him to get fully immersed in the role.

"It's fun to get to play in worlds that aren't necessarily your own," he notes. "I think we were lucky to have that world built so well around us. It meant we could play in reality for us, rather than pretending everything was nice." f

THE SUPER MARIO BROS. MOVIE (PG)

Available from July 12

It is interesting that The Super Mario Bros. Movie manages to bridge a number of generations: the youngsters who are new to the adventures of Brooklyn plumber Mario and his brother Luigi, and those older types – parents perhaps – who grew up with the popular video game franchise decades ago.

latter is sucked into a universe dominated by the evil Bowser (Jack Black).

Bowser has a yen for Princess Peach (Anya Taylor-Joy), who rules the mythical Mushroom Kingdom, while Mario forms an uneasy alliance with Cranky Kong (Fred Armisen) after a battle with the primate's son, Donkey Kong (Seth Rogen).

It's colourful, it's dazzlingly action-packed and has been a huge hit globally.

EYES ON THE PRIZE

She's been one of netball's most decorated players for the past decade, but Melbourne Vixens co-captain Liz Watson isn't done with the history books just yet

SUNCORP SUPER NETBALL FINALS

LIVE from Saturday June 24 at 6.30pm

VITALITY NETBALL WORLD CUP

LIVE from Friday July 28 at 4.30pm

FOX SPORTS 505

Time can be a curious concept in elite sport. On the one hand, it passes so fast as seasons come and go, coupled with the roller-coaster of emotions that result from wins and losses. But then there are times when there's a desire to slow it down – to soak in every moment, before they're immortalised in the history books.

That's where netball superstar Liz Watson finds herself now as she attempts to lead the Melbourne Vixens to Premiership glory following last season's agonising grand final defeat.

FLYING BY

Now in her 10th season as a professional, Watson knows the importance of relishing every moment.

"The past 10 years have flown by!" Watson tells FOXTEL magazine. "It has been an incredible journey and I still pinch myself. I'm just so lucky to be in the position I'm in."

Luck is only part of the equation for Watson, who credits her hard-working family with being the inspiration for her on-court drive.

"My family is a great support for me," she says. "Seeing the hard work that they do in their jobs – they work extremely hard in their professions, so the life I get to live playing netball and the experiences I've had, and where I've travelled and the people I've met, has been incredible."

The Vixens' co-captain is one of the game's most decorated players. As well as winning two Premierships with the Melbourne team – in 2014 and 2020 – she has received a host of individual awards and represented Australia at the 2019 World Cup and in two Commonwealth Games, winning gold in 2022. But rather than taking a step back to soak in her growing list of achievements, Watson has always been focused on the next goal, the next milestone, the next game.

"It's hard to think about your career when you're in it, so I just want to enjoy whatever's left – I'll have more time to really think about what I've achieved after my playing career," she admits.

MORE TO COME

If you think this may signal Watson's imminent retirement, you'd be sorely mistaken.

"I am keen to keep going for as long as I can," the 29-year-old insists. "I am feeling really good, really happy and I feel like I can keep going."

And while a World Cup with the Diamonds at the end of July is very much on the cards – Watson is also the national team's captain – she first has her sights firmly set on another Premiership with the Vixens to accompany the two titles she's previously won.

Having finished as runners-up last year, Watson wants to put that right this season – but history isn't on the Vixens' side.

"Across many sports, it's actually really hard for a team to lose a grand final and then make a grand final the following year," she explains. "So that's been a drive for us."

Indeed, the intensity of the competition has continued to grow this season, making the feat that much harder for Watson and the Vixens.

"The competition is so tight," she acknowledges. "It's the closest I've ever played in my whole career with just how tight the games are becoming. We are in the best competition

Liz Watson captained the Diamonds to Constellation Cup victory in 2022

Losing last year's grand final to West Coast Fever was a tough pill to swallow for Watson's Melbourne Vixens in the world for netball, which is exciting and it's an exciting time in our career."

HOME COMFORTS

The 2022 season was one of many ups and downs for the Vixens. After finishing the regular season as minor premiers, the team eventually lost the grand final to West Coast Fever – and Watson is the first to admit that the team's performance was "poor" that day.

"It was really disappointing and tough to take that the one game you really want to perform in is probably one of your worst games for the season," she reflects.

"Because the league is so close, you can't have a lack of consistency in your game."

As an added incentive to go one better this time around, the grand final on July 8 will be played in Victoria, meaning the Vixens will be roared on by a home crowd should they make it.

"Every team wants to be in the grand final and this year, with it being in Victoria, is even more exciting for us if we get there," Watson says with a smile. "There is still a long way to go, but we're feeling really positive and that's the goal for this season."

Daly Cherry-Evans
kicks a conversion
for the Manly Sea
Eagles in April

“I’m gonna enjoy every year as if it’s MY LAST”

Setting his sights on the finals, Sea Eagles captain Daly Cherry-Evans gets candid about staring down the barrel of retirement – and a possible return to his first club the Dolphins

NRL TELSTRA PREMIERSHIP

LIVE from Saturday July 1 at 2.30pm

FOX LEAGUE [502]

At the ripe old age of 34, Daly Cherry-Evans is one of the NRL’s most senior players. He may be going from strength-to-strength, having captained the Manly Sea Eagles since 2017 and the Queensland Maroons since 2019, as well as being a key member of the Kangaroos national team, but with his Manly contract expiring at the end of 2025, it’s only natural that the word “retirement” is being thrown around.

As we head towards the tail end of another thrilling footy season, FOXTEL magazine sits down with the talented halfback to talk finals hopes, his role with the Rugby League Players’ Association and why he doesn’t rule out a post-playing role with the Dolphins.

Manly’s season got off to an impressive start, before you suffered several big losses. What do you put that down to?

The last couple of years we’ve kept a fair portion of the squad together, so I feel like we’ve been building pretty nicely. I mean, only two years ago we were in a preliminary final, so we have a lot of the tools still there. And then in the offseason, we had a change in coach and coaching staff, which has just given us a different way to look at footy and a different sort of way to play the game. So we’re really enjoying those changes. And I guess, from there, we’ve had a relatively good start. But I mean, it’s a long season and we’re pretty positive in the fact that we can bring it back around and get back into the eight and play finals footy this year.

As you mentioned, Anthony Seibold came in as coach this year, replacing Des Hasler. How much can you credit him with Manly’s current success?

Cherry-Evans was part of last year’s World Cup-winning Kangaroos side

It’s a combination. For sport to work and teams to work in sport, it’s a combination of everyone that’s put together. We’ve really enjoyed Seibs coming in and the coaching staff he’s brought with him – it’s just given us a different style of footy and we’re really enjoying the changes. I think everyone’s heading in the same direction at our club, which makes it easier.

As we approach the pointy end of the competition, how confident are you of making it into the finals?

Personally, I’m always very optimistic about our chances to play finals footy. We’re struggling with consistency in our performance every week, which is why we’ve gone in and out of the top eight, but I feel like by the end of the year we’ll have a really good grasp on our identity as a footy team. I think the longer the year goes, we’ll get more comfortable with this >> new style of play that we've sort of adopted. I'm feeling really good about the season so far and definitely what lies ahead for Manly.

You're famously a one-club player. With your contract set to expire at the end of 2025, what does your future hold? You'll be looking down the barrel of 37 – is retirement on the cards or do you have a few more years left in you?

I'm really lucky I have contract security behind me and I'm so grateful the club's shown me that support throughout my career, to not really give me an opportunity to leave. That's a good thing for me – I have so much stability off the field here with my young family. I don't know when it's gonna end. I know I have a bit of contract left in me. I'm just gonna enjoy every year as if it's my last. I'm still highly competitive and chasing success with Manly. I'm going to try to time it really well. I know the fairytale is hard to chase, but I'm gonna try not to stay around for too long – I'd like to go out on good terms, playing really good footy, ideally going out with a bit of success. I'm just gonna keep enjoying it like it's my last.

You're from Redcliffe and started playing for the Dolphins as a youngster, as did your dad. Now that they're in the NRL, do you harbour a secret ambition to play out your final years back home with the Dolphins?

It's really hard for me to not cheer for them at the moment. They do carry a real soft spot for me, obviously being my first ever footy club. It's great to see their early success.

I just think so much would have to change both with my footy and life away from footy for me to end up there as a player. But who knows? I'd never shut the door on anything. In particular, I'd like to do coaching beyond my playing career, so maybe I could go back and help in that way.

So you hope to get into coaching post-playing? Or commentating perhaps? Is that something you've given much thought to?

To be honest, I haven't thought about it in too much depth and I haven't, probably, done a heap for myself for post-footy – I've been really focused with the playing aspect of my career, just making sure I'm getting the best out of myself as a footy player first. As I do get older and closer to retirement, I do start to think more about what the options are. Anyone who is lucky enough to get an opportunity in coaching and media and commentary, I feel like are the lucky ones. Not everyone gets those jobs – they're pretty scarce. But those things are certainly something I'd like to try. I don't even know if I'd be good at them.

You were elected as General President of the Rugby League Players Association (RLPA) in 2021, following the retirement of Cameron Smith. Just how hands-on a role is that and how much better is players' welfare being taken into consideration these days?

Yeah, look when I first started playing NRL the RLPA was still developing as an association. It's taken some huge steps over the last five to eight years. I've found myself fortunate enough to be involved for the last probably four years and I've really loved what the RLPA has done and the care and the concern they have for the playing group. It has been a fantastic ride and a fantastic learning experience.

What's your stance on the new concussion rule?

It's one of those things where we're probably never going to make everyone happy. But with those sorts of things, it's just best that we see the bigger picture. And the big picture is that we're just trying to protect ourselves long-term. I completely understand the frustration from players when you are taken off the field, but it's just to protect us long-term.

As a proud #GirlDad to three gorgeous daughters, do any of your girls show signs of wanting to follow in your footsteps in the NRLW?

No, they haven't yet. They're playing sports – they just haven't asked anything about rugby league. I would never push anything like that on my kids, I just want them to be happy. I do encourage my kids to play a sport and they can pick whatever they want. But rugby league hasn't popped up yet – the closest we've got is my eldest plays touch footy, so that's close enough. f

Making their mark

As the 2023 AFL season rages on, Brad Johnson reflects on who has made an impact

► From the rise of Collingwood and Adelaide to Jeremy Cameron's emergence as potentially the league's best player, it's been a hot start to the 2023 AFL season. But there's still much to look forward to.

FOX FOOTY expert Brad Johnson (pictured) says it's shaping up as one of the best seasons in recent memory, with the Crows now a force after three tough years under coach Matthew Nicks.

"His word over the last couple of years has been just to build cohesion and it's rising pretty rapidly," Johnson tells FOXTEL magazine. "Their young players are excellent."

Meanwhile, the Magpies are a serious threat and, in just his second season, attacking halfback Nick Daicos is firmly in the Brownlow Medal hunt.

"He's been coached in a really effective way that has allowed his strengths to be put on show," Johnson says. "At the moment, he has that free wheel and that will ultimately turn into locking down one position."

Though Carlton had a rough start, high-marking forward Charlie Curnow has delivered weekly highlights.

"He is consistent, he is so good, whether he is up the ground kicking towards 50 or inside 50, or whether he's that target inside," Johnson reflects.

David Berry was thrilled to be back as Lord John Grey

Behind the scenes... with the cast of Outlander

After a truncated sixth season, fans are in for a real treat with the supersized seventh season of Outlander, which returns with 16 episodes, split over two parts – the second of which will air next year.

With the series confirmed to be ending with season eight, David Berry, who plays Lord John Grey, tells FOXTEL magazine there are mixed emotions as the finish line draws near.

“There’s a sense of excitement that the show is going to get its own way to say goodbye, which a lot of shows don’t get,” he says. “It’s a huge privilege to be able to go out on your own terms and to be able to finish the story the way you want to. So there’s excitement that we get to tell that story, but there’s sadness too, of course, that this is something that’s no longer going to be part of our lives. Outlander’s been a huge part of everyone’s life... and it’s something we will always cherish and look back on with a great sense of pride and, moving on, that we’re sad to say goodbye to.”

The FOXTEL Group is committed to Reconciliation. Our vision is to showcase the voices of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and, through our audience reach, help shape a national culture that values respect, equality and equity for First Nations peoples. Take a walk down memory lane as a new doco pays tribute to Aussie Nicole Kidman

Days of Thunder launched Nicole Kidman onto the world stage in 1990

As ruthlessly ambitious TV journalist Suzanne in Gus Van Sant's 1995 black comedy To Die For

Her role as Virginia Woolf in The Hours earned Kidman the Best Actress Oscar

Starring alongside then-husband Tom Cruise in Eyes Wide Shut took its toll Kidman debuted her singing voice in Baz Luhrmann's Moulin Rouge!

She both starred in and co-produced Big Little Lies

NICOLE KIDMAN, EYES WIDE OPEN

FOX DOCOS [115]

When it comes to Australian acting talent, there are few more celebrated than Nicole Kidman. As Nicole Kidman, Eyes Wide Open explores her stellar career on FOX DOCOS, we take a look back at some of the star's most iconic roles.

BOUND FOR GLORY

Following the success of Phillip Noyce's 1989 thriller Dead Calm, Kidman landed in Hollywood in spectacular fashion, marrying Tom Cruise shortly after playing his love interest in 1990 motor-racing flick Days of Thunder.

"Obviously it changed my life," she says. "I'm so grateful for... everything that came with it."

LEADING LADY

Kidman quickly proved she could capture the attention of critically acclaimed directors, including

Gus Van Sant (To Die For) and Stanley Kubrick, who cast her and Cruise in his final film, 1999's dark erotic drama Eyes Wide Shut. Holding the world record as the longest continuous film shoot, it consumed the couple.

"There's reality and there's pretend and those lines get crossed," Kidman recalls.

HIGHS AND LOWS

In the wake of her public split from Cruise, 2001 saw Kidman add singer and dancer to her résumé as tragic courtesan

Satine in Moulin Rouge!, before a dramatic transformation to play author Virginia Woolf in 2002's The Hours won her the Best Actress Oscar: "Virginia burst into my life just at the moment when I needed her, at a time when I was struggling."

THE LEGEND CONTINUES

With more than 70 films to her name, Kidman returned to TV in 2017 in HBO drama Big Little Lies as abused housewife Celeste, winning Emmys both as an actress and producer. f
